No one said being an IC was going to be easy. Isolated in the command post trying to gain control of the seemingly uncontrollable. Radio traffic reverberates inside car while visuals create a sense that this incident is not cooperating. You have exceeded your span of control and you need help. Now what do you do?

Consider the following:

- Accidental success is not success
- How do we maintain our span of control it is not 5-7. (NFPA 1550 3 or more)
- Personnel inside the IDLH cannot full fill the Tactical supervisors job duties

Join us for a two-day workshop on Reinforced Command Operations. We will focus on the role of the Division Supervisors, Support Officer and the importance of building an effective incident organization. Deploying a "walking boss" will decentralize command by delegating geographic responsibility to a chief officer capable of addressing the tactical objectives within the division while focusing on keeping the hazard zone workers safe. Lots of discussions and plenty of simulations for those interested in improving this critical aspect of fireground operations.

- Review of Division Supervisor Job description
- Review of Embedded Safety with the Division Supervisor
- Review of Tactical Accountability and moving passports
- Review of Tactical Air Management
- We will exercise the Tactical Supervisor and Support/Safety officer position in multiple building types

Get Signed up now! Just 40 open seats.
